niiio finance group AG is continuing its drive to reorientate the company as an independent technology and software company with the sale of its subsidiary and portfolio management customers, as well as timely changes at board level

Ad-hoc report: 25 October 2016

The reorientation of the business activities of niiio finance group AG is still in full swing as it repositions itself as a technology and software company specializing in fintech products for banks and financial institutions. For strategic and economic reasons, the company has sold its subsidiary Meridio ZIBA AG i.Gr. and, within the framework of an asset deal, all portfolio management customers at a price of EUR 250,000. It has now completely abandoned its activities as a licensed portfolio manager.

niiio finance group AG is now focussing exclusively on the field of software services for banks and financial service providers.

In the wake of the new focus, niiio finance group has also changed the composition of its executive board: As previously announced, Uwe Zimmer has left the company. The current chairman of the executive board, Marc-André Barth, will leave his post immediately when the transfer of portfolio management customers is completed. His successor will be Johann Horch (44), currently CEO of DSER.

About niiio finance group AG

New ideas and new banking: innovative, intelligent, intuitive, online niiio finance group AG is an independent technology and software company specialising in software solutions for banks and financial service providers operating in the areas of securities consulting, sales and client communication. Here, the focus is on carrying out long-term individual projects as well as on consulting and advising customers. niiio is based on the product "munio" belonging to the parent company DSER, a market leader in software solutions in the field of portfolio optimisation and portfolio management in the B2B range. The experienced management team is composed entirely of industry visionaries and influencers who possess a combination of broad and deep expertise of finance, fintech networks, IT and technology as well as well-founded knowledge of marketing and of the market. niiio finance group AG would like to change the future of banking and become one of the leading financial technology companies in Germany. That is why the finance holding company selects and promotes the best B2B business models and invests in the most promising fintech solutions. The focus is currently on the growing subsidiary niiio IT Services GmbH. The software developer has launched a new robo-advisor platform that is available to banks and financial service providers as a licensed white-label solution or in the form of SaaS models.
